Brighten Up

"Brighten Up" time is here—the time to clean up about the house, renovate, and make the old things look neat and clean again. We can help you in the work with our line of

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS PAINTS AND VARNISHES.

It is really surprising what a little paint or varnish will do toward brightening up dingy surroundings. Take The S-W. Family Paint, for instance. This is a linseed oil paint specially prepared for home decorating and painting. With it any one can renew the appearance of a hundred little things that now look worn and old. It dries with a good gloss and will stand scrubbing with soap and water. Comes in 26 attractive shades.

The S-W. Floorlac is another splendid household brightener. It is a stain and varnish combined and can be used on old or new woods equally well. Imitates the natural woods and gives a most pleasing effect.

These offer a few hints for you. Come in and have a "Brighten Up" talk with us and learn more about how we can help you in your Fall cleaning. Our line has a paint or varnish for every purpose.

Iver Ekroll of Laton was in Campbell over Sunday the guest of his brother-in-law, O. Strum.

"Big Doin's" at the birthday social this (Friday) evening. Don't miss it as special entertainment is in store for you.

Mrs. Fox and Miss Anna Bosshart of Westfield, Massachusetts, were week-end guests of their friends, Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Curry.

Special services will be held at the Congregational church Sunday evening when the local lodge of I. O. O. F. will attend in a body.

The work of remodelling the Mrs. Mary Lanphear apartment house is progressing and it will make quite an addition to the avenue when completed.

A. G. Williams is exhibiting a frame of silk worm cocoons at the Press office which is attracting much interest. Mr. Williams has about 300 of these cocoons at present,

Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Archibald returned Monday from their two week's outing at Mt. Hermon, and have commenced housekeeping in their new home on Second Street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Fawcett, Mrs. H. C. Smith and R. W. Kennedy made a combined business and pleasure trip to Merced and vicinity last week with E. R. Kennedy in his machine.

Rev. G. E. Atkinson has just received word of his reappointment as Division Chaplain for the Sons of Veterans for the Division of California and the Pacific. Mr. Atkinson held this office last year also.

Mrs. M. J. Wilson and her son, W. M. Wilson, C. B. Miracle and his mother, Mrs. Geo. Miracle, arrived home Thursday from Pacific Grove where they have been spending a month in a cottage by the sea.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Schuyler who have been in the Yosemite Valley for the past several weeks write that they are enjoying the sights immensely. They have had some real snow which was a great treat to Mrs. Schuyler.

Mrs. Earl Gard entertained her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Luck, sisters, Misses Hertha and Hilda Luck of San Jose, and Miss Ella Goebel of Chicago, Sunday. Miss Goebel was a former schoolmate of Mrs. Gard and sisters and is here for several month's visit.

Miss Vera Fablinger left last Friday for Chicago where she will take a post-graduate course at the Cook County Hospital. She will specialize in bacteriology. Miss Fablinger had made plans to go several ttmes before but her services were in such demand that it was impossible to leave until this last week.

Harry Davidson of Great Falls, Mont., who has been visiting his friends, Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Merrill and son, Edward, left Monday for the Jewel City where he will spend a week sightseeing. By special request, Mr. Davidson sang a baritone solo at the Sunday morning services at the Congregational church, which was much appreciated.

The J. C. Ainsley Packing Co. is erecting a new warehouse on the east side of the Southern Pacific tracks on Hopkins avenue. The new structure will be 30x60 with 12 ft. posts and it is to be finished in time for the opening of the fruit season. The concrete walls and supports have been laid and the floor put on. Preparations are being made for a good season in the canning business.

A few years ago, Rev. G. E. Atkinson began the observance of "Father's Day," being the first in this part of the country to so do. There were press accounts of the service in many of the papers as far East as New York City. Recently Mr. Atkinson received a "marked copy" of the Expositor containing an account of the first Father's Day. Letters from three Middle West and Eastern States have since come asking more in detail of the plan and method. The idea seems to "be taking," and "Dad" coming into his own.

One of the pleasant parts of the beautiful "Mother's Day" exercises in the Congregational church recently, was the presentation of fifty copies of the Bible by Mr. Geo. Parso and Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Collins in memory of Mrs. Stella M. Parso, who was one of the most faithful and efficient teachers of the Sunday-school. The Bibles are well bound, with topical helps, explanatory matter, maps, and index and will be a most valuable help in Class work and efficiency. This beautiful gift, in memory of a former Mother, made Mother's Day all the more sacred.

Country Club Meets

(Too late for last week)

The Sunny Oaks' 500 Card Club, held their sixth gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davidson on Budd Ave. All members were present, six progressive games were played. Mrs. Robert Dunn and Mr. E. W. Ohlen carried off head prizes, Mrs. Ohlen and Mr. C. Day receiving consolation prizes. After dainty refreshments were served several of them embers joined in other amusing games, all having a most enjoyable time.

Coffee Club Leased

The Campbell Coffee Club has been leased from the W. C. T. U. by Mr. Matthews, manager of the San Jose Coffee Club.

Mr. Matthews expects to run the Coffee Club the year round, and will serve at very reasonable prices at all hours.

Those who know what a genial enterprising young man Mr. Matthews is feel confident of his success and Campbell is glad to add him to her list of business men.

Santa Clara Won Track Meet

The annual I. A. U. track meet was held on Reed field Saturday afternoon at which many new records were made. Merritt of Santa Clara was the big point maker establishing three new records. James Fablinger of Campbell made a new mark in athletics and was our chief point maker.

Altho Campbell was third in the contest, the boys are pleased with the "bacon" they did capture.

James Huntley took fourth place in the 100 yd. dash. Time 11.3.

Ernest Downing was fourth in the 220-yard dash. New record time 23.4. C. Feathers arrived in fourth place in the mile run in which a new record was made of 4:55.1 by Bull of Santa Clara.

James Fablinger made a new league record in the high jump clearing the bar at 5 ft. 10½ inches. In the discus throw, a new record of 104 feet, 11 inches was made by Merritt of Santa Clara, James Fablinger taking third because of the peculiar shape of the discus. Jim threw 111 feet at the local field recently.

Cecil Kennedy, who made a new record in the pole vault at a former meet took second place this year when a new high mark of 10 ft. 6 in. was made by Merritt.

James Fablinger took first in the broad jump clearing 20 feet 4 inches.

Altho several of our fast athletes will finish High this year there is material enough to develop a winning team in all lines of sport next year.

Grads at Stanford

Campbell and vicinity were well represented in this year's graduating class at Stanford, there being five from around here, and one other who graduated from this High School. The Press joins their many friends in extending congratulations upon their success.

Miss Dorothea L. Smith, daughter of Mrs. Ellen R. Smith was one of those who received her diploma Monday, graduating from the history department.

Miss Lena I. Clark also completed her work in January, taking her degree from the English course.

Herbert J. Scholz, son of Mrs. M. Scholz, received his diploma, from the Electrical Engineering department.

Donald L. Currier of Cupertino took his degree in Entomology and Bionomics, David J. Conant finished the Mechanical Engineering course, and George L. Beaver, recently of Campbell, the Electrical Engineering.

Grangers Convene

Pomona Grange held a very interesting meeting in Campbell Saturday, beginning at 10 o'clock. During the noon intermission a basket lunch was served in the banquet room.

The delegates present reported on the fruit crops in their localities, so far as can be determined at this time, and the following summaries were made.

Apricots 63 per cent of normal; prunes 60 per cent; cherries, 40; apples, 70; pears, 57; peaches, good.

Reports from the various committees were received and much valuable discussion followed. E. K. Clendenning, Master of Orchard City Grange, who is chairman of the committee on co-operation, explained plans that would make co-operation a benefit to producers and consumers both.

Legislation recently enacted was discussed and the opinion of the association as to its merits registered.

When the session closed at 5 p. m. those in attendance felt that the day had been a very profitable one.

"The Friendly Church just around the Corner."

The theme for Sunday morning next is "Pride in the Achievements of Christianity," this was suggested by a recent conversation with one of our business men. Talk to the boys and girls on: "Would the Angels stop at your house?" C. E. and Sunday-school as usual. The Endeavor topic is one that should interterest all young people: "Religious Reading, what and why." Miss Edna Beardsley is the leader.

Evening Service at 7:30. The local lodge of Odd Fellows plan to attend in a body with their families. The Pastor will speak on one of the most daring prophecies in the Bible "A Vision of City Streets."

If you have no other place to worship, you are most cordially invited to worship with us. You will find our services Bright, Brief and Brotherly.

Next Thursday night—i. e. Thursday, May 27th.—Rev. Dr. Brewster of the Christian church of San Jose has promised to come out with his beautiful pictures on: "The Story of the Other Wise Man." The pictures are exceptionally fine and Dr. Brewster is an expert on such lines, so a great treat is assured all. Thursday, May 27th. at the Congregational church at 7:30 p. m.

BEST OF APHORISMS

AMERICAN HAS GATHERED SENTENCES THAT ARE ALIVE

Have Epigrammatic Quality Surprisingly High—For Instance, "Never a Great Saint That Lacked a Sense of Humor."

The successful aphorist is about ten thousand times scarcer than the successful essayist or story teller or Assyriologist, remarks the New York Sun. The man who without borrowing directly from the few really great maxim makers of the world's literature, or without appropriating the letter or the spirit of those folk proverbs which contain the quintessence of human wisdom, can put into eight hitherto uncombined words the entire pathology of human hypocrisy and cant merits especial notice and more or less gratitude of mankind:

"In the truly good all gout is rheumatism."

We commend to the discerning everywhere the small and perhaps not very happily named book, "Keystones of Thought," in which Dr. Austin O'Malley of Pennsylvania has gathered from fifteen hundred to two thousand of these "conclusions which spare you the labor of tramping in moist relentment thought's syllogistic mazes." This small army of aphorisms are not all so good as those which we now proceed to exhibit as examples; but the average of epigrammatic quality is surprisingly high:

Autumn is a hint from God to Old Age.

A fallen lighthouse is more dangerous than a reef.

We are plated with piety, not alloyed with it.

Style is not the setting of the diamond thought; it is the glitter itself of the diamond.

Atheism is a disease of the mind caused by eating underdone philosophy.

It is a long snake that has no tail.

If you snub conscience a few times she will cut your acquaintance.

Memory is a crazy woman that hoards colored rags and throws away food.

Writers on the spiritual life are constantly mistaking the liver for the devil.

Possess your soul without fussing; your guardian angel does not lose half the sleep over you you think he does.

It is as easy to give advice to yourself as to others, and as useless.

Cunning is a short blanket; if you pull it over your face you expose your feet.

The new is what has been forgotten.

In holding an eel a gentle grip is foolishness.

Distance lends amity to cousins.

The most dangerous savages live in cities.

What is called a weak will is commonly a flabby intellect.

There never was a great saint that lacked a sense of humor.

A gentleman never heard a story before.

Many social visits you think paid to yourself are paid to your bottles.

Most women wear their looks like trousers.

Humor without effort, wit without bitterness, philosophy without pretension; Doctor O'Malley has printed a book that is worth possessing.

Lights From the Drug Store.

The general darkening of the lights of London has nearly quenched the rich glow from chemists' windows that used to appeal so strongly to one of Robert Louis Stevenson's friends. "Walter Ferrier," records Stevenson, "had a romantic affection for all pharmacies, and the bottles in the window were for him a poem. He said once that he knew no pleasure like driving through a lamp-lit city waiting for the chemists to go by."

The reigning sultan of Morocco apparently possesses similar tastes. When Muley Yussef last visited Casablanca he departed with an assortment of green, blue and red jars, purchased from chemists. These caught his eye as he passed through the streets, and were promptly purchased to adorn his residence.—Pall Mall Gazette.

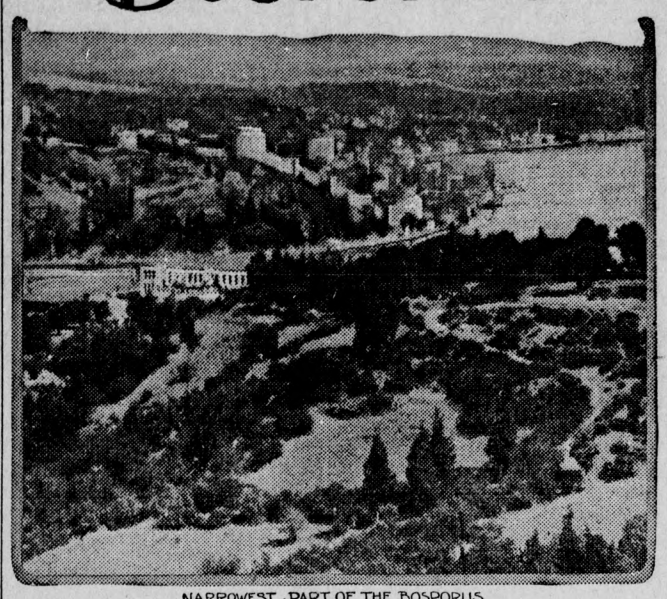
Says Cat Caused Wreck.

Capt. Roland F. Quillan, whose three-masted schooner William J. Quillan, was sunk off Cape Hatteras after a collision with the Norwegian steamship Laly, never again will take a cat to sea. He attributes the accident which nearly cost his life and the lives of his crew, to a gray cat which he had aboard.

"I've shipped for 25 years and always have taken along dogs," Captain Quillan said. "Just before I started from Baltimore for Mayport, Fla., somebody stole my dog, so I got a cat—a gray cat. Cats are bad luck, I guess. This was my first accident. The cat was lost."

The Laly, which brought the Quillan's crew to Newport News, is undergoing repairs, due to the collision, before resuming her voyage.

WONDERS of the BOSPORUS



NARROWEST PART OF THE BOSPORUS

To the wonderful history of the Bosporus the great war is but adding another chapter, for its story runs back through the centuries into the age of myth. Concerning this strip of water that separates the continents of Europe and Asia the National Geographic society says: One writer states that there is perhaps no other locality in the world surrounded by so many historical souvenirs and adorned with so many varied gifts of nature; another that God, man, nature and art have together created and placed there the most marvelous point of view which the human eye can contemplate upon earth; still another remarks that upon this planet there is no other stream so wonderful—that its equal can be found, if at all, only upon some other star.

Dr. Edwin A. Grosvenor remarks that there is hardly a nation in the civilized world whose blood has not mingled with its waters; hardly a faith, hardly a heresy, which, by the devotion of its adherents and martyrs, has not hallowed its banks. Associations the most dissimilar, the most incongruous, the most distant, elbow one another in every hamlet and village. The German emperor, William II, in 1889, disembarked at the same spot which tradition makes the landing-place of that other leader, Jason, with his Argonauts in that sublime voyage of the fourteenth century before Christ.

Deep, Narrow and Swift.

The physical features of the Bosporus are described by the same author in striking terms. He says that in its swift flow it is a river, and in its depth a sea—yet many a sea is less profound and many a river spreads wider and has a less rapid current. Its average depth is about 89 feet. At no point in the channel is the depth less than 147 feet.

So sharply do its submarine banks descend that large vessels, hugging the land too closely, though in deep water, often run their bowsprits and yards into houses on shore. The Strait of Gibraltar, which wrests Africa from Europe, is sixteen miles wide; even the Dardanelles expands from one mile to four. But at its widest the Bosporus is only one and four-fifth miles.

The length of the Bosporus is less than seventeen miles. Each Asiatic side indenture finds a convex bend on the European side; each European bay is met by an Asiatic promontory.

Tradition goes back to a time when, countless ages ago, titanic forces here rent Asia and Europe asunder; when the pent-up, resistless waters of the Black sea tore through valleys and leveled mountains, in their sudden southward rush to the Mediterranean. The volcanic origin of the region confirms this tradition.

Great Place for Fishing.

Seventy edible varieties of fish sport in the waters of the Bosporus. They are mostly migratory. The strait is the only line of communication between the Black sea and the Mediterranean, their summer and winter homes. In their migrations countless shoals succeed one another at intervals of days, and never did the men in the crow's nest of a battleship scan the horizon more earnestly for an enemy than the lookouts for the fishermen peer into the deep for signs of a fish migration. As soon as the advanced guard arrives, a signal is given, and immediately the Bosporus becomes black with fishing boats. So regular are the fish in their habits and so unchanging in their ways, that Aristotle's account of their movements penned twenty-two centuries ago, is still an accurate description of the varieties and their migrations.

A hundred years ago Constantinople and the Bosporus hung in the balance. Doctor Grosvenor relates how, after the treaty of Tilsit, Emperor Alexander of Russia had insisted to Napoleon upon the absolute necessity to his country of the possession of Constantinople. He declared there was no price so great, no condition so hard, that it would not be gratefully accorded by him for the city's acquisition. Napoleon gazed in silence, earnestly and long, at the map of Europe, of which he was at that moment the autocratic arbiter, and then exclaimed: "Constantinople, Constantinople! Never! It is the empire of the world!"

Sea of Marmora.

The Sea of Marmora, which is the connecting link between the Dardanelles and the Bosporus, is a quiet sheet of water. Nature has been more than generous in her provisions for guarding this sea between Asia and Europe against hostile power. The Bosporus, its approach from the Black sea on the north, is a deep, water-filled, twisting valley, whose surface almost all the way is at the mercy of the enclosing mountain heights. In the south, the Dardanelles, while of greater breadth than the Bosporus, forms an easily defended channel, 47 miles long and commanded by its shore heights.

Marmora sea is a wonderful amphitheater for a modern naval struggle. An elliptical bowl of bluest water, it is enclosed by a hilly shore line, which is bold and steep upon the Asiatic side. From east to west, the sea is 175 miles long, while its extreme width is about fifty miles. It has an area of 4,500 square miles.

Constantinople lies tucked away near the northernmost point of Marmora, at the opening of the Bosporus outlet. In the west and south are several considerable islands, of which the largest, Marmora, has been famous for its alabaster and marbles since the days of Grecian sculptural and architectural glory.

The Sea of Marmora is one of the most famous and important seas of passage in the world. Behind its waters, along the northern shore of the Black sea, are the most fertile and favored provinces of the Russian empire, Russia's granary; while on the eastern Black sea coast lies Russia's greatest oil port and her famous oil-bearing hinterland. This sea is the most important avenue of Central Asia's raw materials western transport and of the West's manufactures for consumption in the central East.

Benzol and Toluol.

Dr. Rittman's production of toluol and benzol from petroleum is also of importance if the process is sufficiently cheap to be of commercial use. In this regard, too, the doctor was noticeably cautious not to commit himself. Professor Lietnii made "benzene and toluene" (benzol and toluol) in 1877 from Russian petroleum. Later the Nobel brothers did the same thing in their laboratory. In 1904 V. Oglobin described the preparation of benzene, toluene, xylene, etc., in considerable quantities, from the Russian crude oil.

It should, perhaps, be noted that the Russian crude oil differs somewhat from that of Pennsylvania, being rich in hydrocarbons of the naphthene series, instead of those belonging to the paraffine group.

Plainly none of these early inventions was of commercial importance, for the bulk of the supply of benzol and toluol still comes from coal tar. The value of Doctor Rittman's process depends almost solely upon its cheapness.

Small Leaks.

A writer in the Scientific American has figured what we lose by a leaking faucet. If a faucet leaks to the extent of two drops of water a second, the leakage would amount in a month to a little over eighty-four gallons. If the water rate is twenty-five cents a thousand gallons, the money loss would be about two cents a month. If the leak is from a hot water faucet, the loss would of course be larger, for fuel has been wasted in heating the escaped water. If coal costs $5 a ton, the loss in water and heat will be nearly ten cents a month. "The fact that the loss is small," says the Scientific American, "should not allow us to neglect small leaks, because by disregarding them we tend to become slovenly in all things. Furthermore, small leaks do not stay small. The constant leakage of faucets wears small passages through the seats, and makes tightness impossible. The next thing is a new faucet with the accompanying plumber's bill, which is notoriously not small."—Youth's Companion.

MIDNIGHT'S FIRST LESSON FROM SNOWBALL.

"Good morning," said Snowball, as he met Midnight the next morning after he had brought the kitten home from the city; "hope you had a good sleep and that you feel better this morning than you did yesterday when I saw you by the side of master's wagon."

"I had a fine sleep," said Midnight, "for the bed was the softest I ever slept on, and there were no noises to disturb me, and I was warm all night, and that is something I have not enjoyed for a long time."

Kit and Puff came in just then and said "Good morning" to Snowball, but did not notice Midnight.

"Something the matter with your eyesight this morning?" asked Snowball, as he noticed Kit and Puff had only said "Good morning" to him. "Can't you see that Midnight is here?"

Kit and Puff knew well enough what Snowball meant, and not wishing to openly offend him, they said "Good morning" to Midnight, but in a very haughty way and without looking in his direction.

"Are you going to breakfast?" they said, as they passed Snowball, and he kept on walking toward the kitchen.

"I shall be there very shortly," said Snowball, and walked over to where Midnight was sitting.

When he got over close to the kitten he sat down, and, after waiting for a minute, he said: "Do you know what a cat ought to be, above everything else?"

"I don't know that I do," said Midnight. "You see, I am not very old yet."

"Well, your youth is no disadvantage," said Snowball; "but a cat first of all ought to be good. He ought to be truthful and honest, he ought not to take things that do not belong to him, and he ought to be kind and not get angry. But next to being good, he ought to be clean. My master says that cleanliness is next to goodness, and, as he never told me, I don't know whether goodness comes first or not; but, anyway, they are right next to each other.

"Now it is perfectly plain to me that, however good a kitten you may be, you certainly are not clean. There is mud on your paws that was there yesterday when I picked you up in the street, and your mustache has cobwebs on it that I know you never got here, for mistress is too neat to have cobwebs about her house."

"I didn't suppose," said Midnight, "that a little mud made any difference, and as for cobwebs I hadn't noticed them at all."

"Well," said Snowball, "last night I told you I was going to teach you to be a real cat, and I am going to begin by teaching you how necessary it is to be clean. Breakfast is ready in the kitchen, and I suppose that Kit and Puff are already eating theirs, but you cannot go into the kitchen and cannot have any breakfast until you have all the mud off your whiskers and until you are very much cleaner than you are now, and I do not want you ever again to come down to breakfast without having thoroughly washed your face and brushed your coat."

"How will I get the mud off?" asked Midnight, "for I know it is stuck on very hard. I got a lot of it on when a dray drove by and the wheels splashed a lot of dirty water on me."

"Come out in the barn," said Snowball, "and I will show you."

When they got to the barn Snowball found a place on the side of the door where there was a rough board, and leaning his body up against it he pushed as hard as he could, walking forward at the same time.

"You try doing that a few times and see if it doesn't feel good to your coat and clean it at the same time."

Midnight tried it somewhat awkwardly three or four times, and then Snowball said: "Turn around and rub the other side." Midnight did as he was told, and pretty soon all the mud was rubbed off.

"Now," said Snowball, "you see that round hole in the door. That is for us cats to go in and out when the door is closed. You go through there standing up just as straight as you can and rubbing your back hard against the top of the hole."

Midnight followed this direction, and after a few trips through the hole he had rubbed all the mud off his back.

"That's a little rougher treatment than you will have to have when you are once thoroughly cleaned," explained Snowball; "and now I want you to smooth your fur and wash your face."

"How shall I do it?" asked Midnight.

"With your tongue, this way," and Snowball began licking his sleek fur, already glossy from the bath which he had taken as soon as he woke. "And you wash your face like this," he explained, lapping his paw and rubbing his face with it.

Midnight worked hard to do as Snowball had shown him, and while Snowball occasionally laughed when Midnight tried to lick a spot hard to get at and almost tipped over, he nevertheless helped Midnight by giving him an occasional suggestion

At length Midnight had washed himself all over and looked at Snowball to see what he should do next.

"You have done pretty well," said Snowball, "for a kitten that was as dirty as you were to start with, and I guess that we will go in to breakfast, but I want you to spend the day today in getting your coat in first-class condition, and don't forget that hereafter no bath, no breakfast. A cat is never a good cat unless he is a clean cat." And so saying he led Midnight toward the kitchen.

FACTS FOR NATURE LOVERS

How many different animals are there in the world?

No one knows exactly, but as nearly as can be estimated from the researches of our best fauna experts—and fauna means animals—it is said that there are about 600,000 of them, different kinds. Of course, there were nearly as many different kinds a great many years ago, but they were not known. In 1830 a man named Gunther made a list of all the known animal species at that time, and his figures were only 78,588.

Another careful list of the different kinds of animals in the world was made in 1881. At that time we had discovered 311,563 different kinds. Scientists and explorers discover many different species of birds and animals every year. Mr. Roosevelt and his party discovered some new ones this year down in Brazil.

How many kinds of bugs are there?

By that I suppose you mean insects. Well, of course, there are ever and ever so many more insects than animals. In 1905 a Mr. Sharper, a learned naturalist, made a list of 250,000 different insects and he declared at that time that he was certain he had not listed more than one-tenth of all the insects in the world. If this is true, and Mr. Sharper probably knows, it means that there are at least 2,500,000 different kinds of insects in the world.

"At a snail's pace" is a common expression and usually signifies a very slow gait, but what do you suppose is the actual speed made by the snail in traveling?

TOY CASTLE HELD TOGETHER

Building Blocks, Designed by Indiana Man, Will Resist Ordinary Assault—Dovetail Securely.

Toy castles, like dream castles, are not very stable. Nobody has devised a way to make the latter stand, but an Indiana man has designed a set of building blocks by means of which a toy castle can be built that will hold together under an ordinary assault. These blocks consist of top and base pieces and panels with grooves and projections that dovetail together. Each piece that is added contributes to the stability of the whole, and when the entire structure has been put together it is a very substantial toy. It can be moved around from one part of the nursery to another and the small architect, or rather builder, may crawl inside and "fight" from this vantage point without having to be too careful of where his feet strike.

WHAT THE POOR BOY NEEDS

Not Riches, But to "Feel the Need of a Better and Truer Life"—Money Spoils the Youth.

A Socialist recommends that every family should have $1,400 to $1,600 a year to help the children along to the high point of equal opportunity and success in the race of life. That is the worst sort of advice. A boy doesn't need a cent of money to help him along to true manhood and an honorable career, the Ohio State Journal observes. All he wants is to feel the need of a truer and better life, and if that is not sufficient money will not avail. Money will spoil any boy. It will make him the victim of the slightest obstacle or inconvenience.

If a man wants to spoil his son, let him have what money he wants. Send him to college and let him there put on style and live extravagantly and he is a "goner" sure. True scholarship as well as true manhood consists in overcoming obstacles. Give a boy money, so he can float downstream to the tinkling of the soft guitar, and all that sort of thing, and he will be sure to land in the swamps where the mud pythons play. As a rule, it is better to be born poor than rich. This is not doctrine; it is history.

The Boy's Complaint.

"Oh, no; there ain't any favorites in this family!" soliloquized Johnny. "Oh, no! If I bite my fingernails, I catch it over my knuckles. But if the baby eats his whole foot, they think it's cute."—Boy's Life.

RELISHES FOR SPRING

TEMPTING MENU NEEDED AT THIS SEASON.

Condiments Liked in the Winter Have Lost Their Savor and Others Must Be Provided to Take Their Places.

Springtime appetites should be as fresh and unspoiled as is the spring itself. But too often the spring appetite is dulled and it is only by dint of constant care the housekeeper or cook is able to provide a tempting diet on the spring table.

Winter fare palls at this season. And the usual winter condiments and appetizers fail to work successfully. Mustard pickles, chowchow, cole slaw, olives—all have lost their winter trick of whetting the appetite. Celery has literally lost most of its crispness and sweetness by spring. New appetizers and relishes must be relied on to give point to the daily diet.

Cucumbers are one reliable spring relish. There is, of course, much objection to cucumbers on the ground of indigestibility. They are usually indigestible—that nobody can deny. But some people do not find them so, and eat them without fear. So if they are not taboo on your table, make use of them. It is a good plan to slice them thinly and place them in iced water in the refrigerator for an hour before using them. Then dress them with oil and vinegar and serve them with fish. Or dice them and mix them with diced green pepper and celery, with mayonnaise, in cups of lettuce leaves as a salad.

Tomatoes, too, can be made to serve admirably the purpose of whetting the appetite. A very good appetizer with which to begin dinner is a round of firm tomato, half an inch thick, on which is placed pepper, celery or cucumber, mixed with mayonnaise dressing. Sliced tomatoes, iced in the refrigerator, are another good dinner accompaniment. They may be served with fish or with the meat course. And of course all sorts of tomato salads are delicious in spring. And a good sherbet for dinner can be made of equal parts of strained tomato juice and meat stock, to which a little softened gelatin has been added, frozen in an ice cream freezer to sherbet consistency.

Radishes should always be served very cold. Clean them and chill them thoroughly in iced water and then cut in attractive shapes. Make roses, sometimes, by cutting back the red skin in points. Again, slash the radishes from the pointed end down three or four times. Slice radishes and serve with other vegetables on lettuce leaves for salad.

Sweet green peppers are as useful in warm weather as in cold. Chop them and mix with an equal amount of celery, chopped fine, and moisten with mayonnaise. Serve a spoonful on a lettuce leaf for salad, or serve a spoonful on a slice of thin, crisp toast in the form of a canape for an appetizing beginning to dinner. Stuff a pepper, one end of which has been removed, with cream cheese and chopped nuts and slice to serve with salad.

Calf's Heart.

Merely wash off the blood. One could by soaking extract all the flavor from the heart. Stuff it with veal forcemeat stuffing or a common stuffing. Tie a buttered paper over the mouth of the heart to keep the stuffing in place. Put it into a small baking pan with a little hot water, pepper and salt. Bake nearly two hours, basting it very frequently. When done thicken the gravy with flour, strain, skin and season it and pour it on the dish around heart. Garnish the plate with onions, first boiled until nearly done, then seasoned with pepper, salt and a little butter and browned in oven.

Peach Moonshine.

Take preserved peaches and cut into tiny pieces till you have enough to fill a teacup. Beat the whites of five eggs to a very stiff froth, then add gradually six tablespoonfuls of confectioners' sugar, beating it hard for 20 minutes; then beat in the peaches and set it on ice till thoroughly chilled. Put rice, sweetened cream in the glass and liberal portion of the moonshine. Pineapple or other fruit can be served in the same way.

Orris Root for Laundering.

When washing handkerchiefs, break up a quarter of an ounce of orris root and tie it in a piece of muslin, boiling it in with the handkerchiefs for a quarter of an hour.

When dry, iron them carefully, and they retain a delicate violet odor that is very refreshing.

Use about three pints of water for this quantity of orris root.

Chocolate Fudge.

One cupful brown sugar, one cupful white sugar, one-half cupful milk, two squares of chocolate, boil five minutes, not too hard, but keep boiling all over. Just before removing from the fire add a small piece of butter about one-half size of egg. Remove and beat, add a few drops of vanilla, turn into a greased pan before it gets too hard.

Marmalade Sandwiches.

Make these just before eating them. Butter white and brown bread and spread with orange marmalade, rather thinly. On each slice of brown bread put a slice of white buttered bread, and on the white put brown slices.

Dead Man Took Last Bible.

The stock of Bibles at one of the big hotels has run out. At some New York hotels there is one in every room, but the number at this particular hotel was limited to two, except such as were owned by the guests. A few weeks ago a man borrowed one and took it away with him when he left town.

Yesterday the custodian of the books called up the room clerk.

"What has become of the gentleman who was in No. 495? He borrowed last week the sole remaining Bible we had," she said.

The clerk looked over the address book.

"Why, that room was used by a man who died the other day," he informed her.

Great Generals All Used Snuff.

Suggestions of a revival of snuff taking may recall the love of some famous commanders for tobacco in that form. Both Napoleon and Wellington were prodigious snuff takers, so was Washington. On the Toss of a Coin

By Verda Matteson Joyce

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.)

"Hello"—challengingly.

"Hello yourself"—suspiciously.

Thus two young men of Irvington, meeting, almost collided at a hedge and tree-environed corner of the country village.

"New tennis racket?" projected the first speaker, Albion Merkle, after a critical stare at the paper-enveloped parcel the other carried and clearly outlined as to shape.

"Oh, yes," was carelessly nodded, with a free swing of the article in question. "Yours a golf club?"

"That's it," acquiesced Merkle, casually. "See here, aren't we working at cross purposes?"

"What do you mean?" questioned Ned Dallas.

"Nellie—Miss Warren. Oh, come now, Dallas! you're thinking of a game at tennis with that charming young lady."

"I am going to her home this afternoon, yes."

"So am I," coolly asserted Merkle. "You see, it comes to a problem of precedent. I'm the oldest. I've known her longest, and her venerable father pleasantly told me that my company was acceptable."

"Why!" flared out Dallas, "he said exactly that same thing to me."

"Yes, he is a liberal minded old fossil and wants to give his lovely daughter a chance. Here's three of us, and the best man wins."

"Three?" questioned Dallas.

"I'm including Roy Elston."

"You needn't. His cake is dough."

"How do you know?"

"Old Warren told me so. That is, he entertains a suspicion that Elston is a fighter. Those scars on his face

He Produced One.

make the old fellow suspect he was a prize fighter once. You know Mr. Warren is almost Quakerish in his dislike for fighting."

"H'm!" muttered Merkle. "Then it's between you and I. See here, we both want to see the charming Nellie this afternoon. I'll tose you to see who goes."

"Done!" acquiesced Dallas.

The shrewd eyes of his companion twinkled cunningly as he thrust his hand into his pocket. He fumbled two coins there.

"One guess," he said. "Heads or tails?"

"Heads."

"Throw."

Merkle smiled to himself as he fingered those ready coins under cover. He produced one. Dallas tossed.

"Lost," announced Merkle cheerily as it came down "tails."

As the precious twain—who had risked their chances if it ever came to the ears of Nellie Warren that her company had been bargained for as if she were a prize package—went their way, just behind the hedge there arose in view a smiling, bright-faced young fellow.

It was Roy Elston, to whom the would-be lovers had alluded. His face was, indeed, scarred on one side. He was athletic. There was too much manhood in the clear open countenance, however, to suggest the bruiser.

"So, Mr. Warren has taken an antipathy to me?" mused Roy. "I must disabuse the impression," and going home he wrote to a certain General Revere, as follows:

"Dear Old Friend:

"Mr. Robert Warren, whose daughter I know, and who seems to be an old acquaintance of yours, has formed a prejudice against me. Won't you write him assuring him as to my intentions as a peaceable, respectable individual?"

Then Roy took a photograph from his pocket, smiled upon it, pressed it to his lips and murmured softly:

"Dear, sweet Nellie!'

For Roy in his quiet earnest way had weeks since outstripped Albion and Ned in the estimation of Miss Warren. In fact, there was a clear understanding between them. Mr. Warren treated Roy with rather scant courtesy, but Roy hoped to soon remove this unfounded prejudice.

That evening Roy called at the Warren home. Its dignified proprietor bestowed a rather cool nod upon him, as he passed him walking in the garden with his daughter. Then, the lovers once alone, Nellie indignantly told her favored suitor some things he had not heard of.

It seems that there was no danger of Roy fearing his rivals, at least for some time to come. Both were laid up at home, badly battered and disfigured.

"The idea of tossing a penny to see which should call upon me first!" fluttered Nellie. "The idea of it!"

"Why, where did you hear of that?" voiced the discreet and astonished Roy.

"It is all over town," and Nellie gave the facts of the case. It seemed that Merkle after leaving Dallas had boasted of his two trick coins, loaded to come up heads or tails, as he chose. Of this the duped Dallas had heard. He sought out his rival. Result: a fist fight bitter and to a finish, and neither would be presentable for some time to come.

Some girl friends had come to spend a week with Nellie and a grand program for outing and pleasure had been formulated. In their beds the wounded rivals groaned and writhed as they heard of the great doings of the happy group, where modest unpretentious Roy Elston was the prized chevalier of the occasion.

Mr. Warren did not welcome his daughter's suitor with any warmth at any time. In fact, his chillness was constantly on the increase.

He had acted several times as though inclined to call Roy to an interview, probably to ask him to discontinue his attentions to his daughter.

This rather depressed Roy, and one afternoon as he and Nellie sat resting on a bench after a game at tennis, he rather covertly watched Mr. Warren, who was pacing up and down a near path in a manifest state of uneasiness or excitement.

"It's coming," murmured Roy apprehensively, as Mr. Warren after a thoughtful pause advanced directly towards the spot where he and Nellie sat.

"Ahem!" observed her father. "Young man, I hope to be considered a fair-dealing and truthful individual."

"I have never heard that disputed," averred Roy promptly, wondering what his unusual and mystifying declaration might preface.

"Just so—just so," floundered Mr. Warren. "Well, as you know I am a man of peace. I don't see how I got the impression, perhaps the influence of an idle remark, but somehow I fancied you were of a belligerent disposition."

"Why, papa!" piped in the indignant Nellie—"he is a—a perfect dove!"

"At all events I was unjustly prejudiced," went on Mr. Warren, "and I wish to make amends. I have just received a letter from an old friend of mine who knows you very well."

"Perhaps you mean General Revere?" intimated Roy deftly.

"Exactly, and—and I wish to apologize for my mistaken opinion of you," broke out Mr. Warren, impetuously.

Roy gladly and eagerly clasped the extended hand of the man who held his fate in his power.

"And, by the way," pronounced Mr. Warren, "I—I think Nellie will be interested in reading the general's letter."

With glowing eyes Nellie perused the epistle that had come in answer to the request of her lover. It explained those tell-tale scars. It recited a deed heroic in the collapse of a small theater building, where Roy had risked his life, but had saved some twenty imperiled women and children.

Mr. Warren watched her face for a moment, remembered that he was once young himself, and discreetly retired.

Nellie sprang to her feet, her whole being breathing out soulfulness. She threw her arm around Roy's neck.

"Oh! you brave, modest hero!" she cried adoringly.

Napoleon at Waterloo.

The rumors that Napoleon was drugged or intoxicated at Waterloo are absolutely without foundation. He was a temperate man in all ways, a man of judgment and lightning-like deductions. He was in no sense a man dominated by passion. It is, however, true that at Waterloo he was showing the effects of age, ill health, and too strenuous labor. He had been in the saddle for 18 hours and was somewhat sluggish, but he still gave his commands. Yet it is true that he did not command his army with the clear and brilliant judgment of his more youthful period.

Sick Women Made Well

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 1135 Knight St., Camden, N.J.

And this one from Mrs. Haddock:

UTICA, OKLA.—"I was weak and nervous, not able to do my work and scarcely able to be on my feet. I had backache, headache, palpitation of the heart, trouble with my bowels, and inflammation. Since taking the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am better than I have been for twenty years. I think it is a wonderful medicine and I have recommended it to others."—Mrs. MARY ANN HADDOCK, Utica, Oklahoma.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Strange Death Message.

It may have been a strange and tragic coincidence. Some will believe there was more in it than that. The husband of a Paris woman violinist, himself a musician, left for the front shortly after mobilization. His Christian name was Remy. At parting he told his wife: "If I go under I will try to let you know directly before the official news reaches you." She scarcely played any music during his absence. But the other day she took up her violin, feeling impelled to play one piece which he liked above all. She opened his case, and two strings of the violin suddenly snapped, the D and the E. "Re" and "Mi," she at once thought. It was the warning he had said he would give her. The next day a telegram informed her that her husband, Sergeant Remy, had been killed in action.—Paris Correspondence London Telegraph.

Teacher Should Have Known.

The naughty boy of the class came into school half an hour late. He apologized to the lady teacher and, pulling an orange from his pocket, gracefully proffered it as a propitiatory gift.

Just a trifle to his surprise it was promptly accepted and put into the teacher's desk. When dinner time arrived the young man showed reluctance to depart.

The teacher, with covert amusement, watched him as he awkwardly hung about, and finally inquired: "Well, Tommy, why don't you go?" "Want me orange," he muttered. "Your orange? Why, you gave it to me. You said you had brought it for me," expostulated the teacher. "Yes," admitted the youngster, aggrieved, "but yer knowed I was only kiddin'."

School Board Acts

The local Grammar School Board met Tuesday evening for the purpose of electing teachers. All members of the faculty were reelected. Mr. Kammerer will have charge of the music in all the rooms. The other teachers are Misses Sawyer, Atkinson, Farley and Clark.

Mr. Kammerer plans to take a special six weeks course in music at the state university this summer.

The Board also decided to make preparations for the call of a bond election for building of a new Grammar school. The general plan for the building is practically decided on but the details of the plan are not yet completed. These will be published as soon as finished.

Mrs. Donaldson Entertains

Mrs. Wm. Donaldson of Campbell, was hostess on Tuesday, May 18th at a most delightful reunion of friends, the guests being Miss Minette J. Waterman of Los Gatos, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. M. J. Wilson and grandson, Master Cusach, of San Jose, and Mr. and Mrs. Thos. H. Fowler of North Bend, Neb. The ladies of the party are nieces of Mrs. Donaldson.

Mr. Fowler is cashier of the First National Bank of North Bend, Nebraska, and a member of the $100,000 League of the Prudential Insurance Company which holds a convention at the Exposition City next week.

Incidentally, Mr. and Mrs. Fowler are visiting old familiar scenes, having been married in Los Gatos at the home of Mr. John B. Waterman, twenty-one years ago. Their only regret is that Mr. Donaldson and son were not at home, Mr. Donaldson having been detained in Yolo Co. by the continued rains.

Janet Is Engaged

The ladies of the M. E. church gave a most delightful entertainment at the church Friday evening to a crowded house.

Mrs. Harry Williams and Mrs. Harry Watrous gave most comical original sketch of society's misguided efforts to help the wretchedly poor. The "Kids" came in for their share of fun and noise. The male quartet gave a selection that was most heartily applauded.

Mrs. Nye Farley of Santa Clara rendered whistling and vocal solos which were very much appreciated. Mrs. Farley enters into her pieces so thoroughly that her audience catches the enthusiasm and spirit of theparts.

The "all-star" performance was "Engaging Janet" who in the person of Mrs. E. E. Lanphear with her engaging ways became engaged in an unsuspecting manner. Mesdames E. W. Preston, H. A. Watrous, C. J. Ringe, A. D. Van Arsdell, C. P. Herrington, H. W. Williams were a bunch of designing agents who attempted to engage her services. A "man" completed the job.

Mrs. Watrous gave several reading selections which were highly entertaining.

Robert Scholz played two violin solos accompanied by Miss Lloyd and during the social hour that followed the orchestra played several popular airs.

Methodist Church Notes

The new mayor of Chicago is on the water wagon. What do you know about that? Distillery and brewery stock is still dropping.

A number of our people have been attending commencement exercises at the College of the Pacific this week.

Did we win that banner? Say, you should have been along. The Morgan Hill church was crowded, and Campbell had the biggest delegation of the whole county, and with 306½ points we gathered in that piece of silk and brought it home. We don't know what the ½ point was for, but we had it. Now, we want all the good people who helped us win the banner by attendance at our meetings to come Sunday evening and see the banner. It will be displayed at 7:15, the hour at which time we have been taking our count of attendance.

Mrs. Bessie Kennedy was elected 4th vice president of the County Alliance of the Epworth League at the rally Tuesday evening.

The pastor will speak Sunday morning on "Children and the Church," and at the same service the rite of baptism will be administered to young children presented by their parents or guardians. Will those desiring to present their children please speak to the pastor about the matter before Sunday.

A Children's Day program will be given by the Sunday-school at the hour of evening service. The program selected for this occasion is entitled "Hearts of Gold," and is one of the finest ever composed for the purpose and should prove thoroughly enjoyable to young and old. The evening collection goes to the Children's Fund of the board of education of the church, a fund that is for the assistance of young people from our Sunday-schools in securing advanced education.

Great Seal of the United States.

The great seal of the United States is kept locked up in a rosewood box in the vaults of the state department at Washington. Its custodian will impress it upon a document only on receipt of a formal warrant signed by the president. The use of it or indeed the possession of an impression of it without such a warrant is a grave offense, punishable like the most serious forgery. It cost $10,000 and is Uncle Sam's most sacred possession. When it is imprinted upon a document—a Thanksgiving proclamation, for instance; this is of parchment and beautifully engrossed—such document is filed in the archives and only printed or typewritten copies are sent out. Governors of states are entitled to receive copies signed by the president and secretary of state personally. Other persons unless specially favored receive only printed copies.—New York World.

Crowds on the Fun Zone at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition

Local and Personal

Mr. and Mrs. R. K. Thomas returned home from Pacific Grove Wednesday.

Geo. S. Robson has been appointed Campbell correspondent for the Mercury-Herald.

Dr. W. I. Merrill's family will spend next week at Camp Campbell while doing the Exposition.

Thos. Ahern and E. Shullingsburg of the S. P. official force were in Campbell Wednesday on company business.

Mrs. Frank Cutting is reported steadily improving. She is able to take a few steps each day and feels much stronger.

Prof. I. W. Snow will do his sightseeing on a "Twin-Indian" this summer, having purchased a new one this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. McCaughey left Saturday for Cressy, in the San Joaquin valley, to help their two sons during the spring work.

Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Sharp autoed to Tracy Sunday to visit their son, E. N. Sharp, and family. They returned Tuesday afternoon.

The "Minstrel Show" advertised for tonight at Moreland Hall has been canceled and the ladies will entertain at a card party instead.

Mrs. Ray W. Olson returned to her home at Berkeley last week after spending a couple of months here with her father, S. G. Nelson.

The next meeting of W. C. T. U. will be held at the Coffee Club building June 2nd, at which time Flower Mission Day will be observed.

Gilbert Newcomb left Corvalis, Ore., yesterday and expects to reach home the first of the week after spending a few days at the Exposition City.

Ruby Reynolds is nursing a badly scalded foot as the result of spilling boiling water in her shoe. With the aid of crutches she is now able to be about.

W. T. Morton has very kindly donated the lumber for the park walk to the Country Woman's Club who greatly appreciate his interest in the public improvements.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Doze have come here to live. They will occupy the Mrs. O'Brien house on Rincon avenue. Mr. Doze is the new superintendent at the E. B. & A. L. Stone gravel crusher.

Mrs. W. C. Bohnett has been at the Expositon this week "seein' things," going up Saturday with Claud Gard who spent the week-end there. Mrs. Gard returned with her husband Sunday evening.

Mrs. Verner, who has been visiting Mrs. A. I. Cramer, left Sunday to take in the Exposition, returning from there to her home in Birmingham, Ala. Mrs. Cramer accompanied her to the city remaining until yesterday.

The Epworth League went to Morgan Hill Tuesday evening 54 strong and brought home the "bacon" or rather the banner for which they had been so earnestly striving. Morgan Hill gave the Leaguers a regal reception and the compliment will be returned later.

The basement of the Congregational church is being put into shape to use for Sunday-school classes. The walls have been finished, and leaf doors made, which divide it into two good rooms. The young men's class, which is conducted by Mr. Geo. B. Cowles will occupy one of these.

Always Moving.

"Does Gubbles ever make a move at the club meetings?" "Oh, lots of them. He's got St. Vitus dance."—Exchange.

F. E. & C. U. Meeting

A large delegation from this vicinity attended the meeting of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Union in San Jose Tuesday afternoon, when the National President, Charles S. Barrett of Atlanta, Georgia, was present.

Utter, of Campbell, California state president presided as chairman, and at the business meeting, Fred Millard of Los Gatos, state secretary, was elected state delegate to the national convention to be held in September at Omaha, Nebraska. Those present from here were D. M. Utter, Fred Millard, P. W. Keith, F. M. Righter, H. M. Fairfield, A. E. Styles, R. W. Kennedy, H. Griffin, Geo. S. Robson, Lloyd Gardner, Frank Gardner and W. L. Beacock.

Has To Be Rescued In Attempting Rescue

The Chicago American under a date at West Palm Beach, Florida, gives the following brief but exciting account of the rescue of Mrs. W. C. Koehne of Chicago, which says that when she went to rescue her maid who could not swim, Mrs. Wm. Lewis Koehne of Chicago came near drowning. She was rescued by two young men bathers who battled with the breakers for fifteen minutes before bringing both ladies to the shore.

Mrs. Koehne, will be remembered by many here as a niece of Mrs. C. J. Ringe who visited her aunt and uncle south of town a year or so ago.

Campbell School Accredited

Prof. W. B. Kammerer received a letter from Supt. D. T. Bateman the first of the week stating that the Campbell Grammar school had been accredited by the County Board of Education.

Mr. Bateman stated that this was done because of the good work done the past year. This comes as a great compliment to Mr. Kammerer as this is his first year of teaching in this county and it is customary to require county examinations in schools supervised by a principal new in the county.

The splendid showing made in recent examinations proved to the Board that the work was up to standard and its decision was based largely on the results of the tests.

Something Missing.

When Irving wanted to be nasty he could be, remarked an old Lyceum hand once. His patience with the rank and file was extraordinary, but where a rebuke was deserved Irving's biting sarcasm was quite up to the occasion.

There was in one production a super who, though he had only a couple of lines to speak, made his entrance in such a way as to lead one to believe he was sustaining the leading role, and his behavior to his fellow actors was equally unwarrantable. Irving soon got on the track of this man and ran him to earth at rehearsal. In due time the super entered, haughtily saying:

"My lord, the carriage is waiting."

"Let's have it louder," said Irving.

The man repeated it in a louder tone, whereupon Sir Henry demanded that it should be repeated again still louder. Yet again did he make the super repeat it, and louder still, and yet again was the same demand made. The man was becoming enraged and at last shrieked out the words.

"Very good," said Sir Henry, "very good, indeed, but couldn't you just manage to put a shade of temper into it?"—Pearson's.

Yellowstone Park Open to Automobiles

The Department of Interior will permit automobiles to enter Yellowstone National Park on and after August 1, 1915 under appropriate rules and regulations. These rules and regulations are now being formulated but will not be available for general distribution until sometime next month.

The Goodrich National Touring Bureau has prepared route descriptions from all points of the country to Yellowstone, entering either via Cody on the east side or Gardiner at the North Gate or via Pocatello and the west gate. All regular traffic in the Park will be required to move in one general direction in making a circuit of the park, the automobiles leaving before the stages, both morning and evening, from the different entrances or from intermediate stations inside of the Park. Schedules on which the machines will be required to run will constitute a part of the regulations.

The above announcement is made by the Goodrich National Touring Bureau to enable motorists who are planning a visit of the west to take advantage of this opportunity of seeing Yellowstone National Park.

When the War Closes, What?

Assuming that the war in Europe will run its course and finally cease from exhaustion, and that our country will escape involvement in it, what then?

The foreign ships will again ply unrestricted between those countries and ours. Europe will be loaded down with millions of people pauperized by the war and for bare expenses these ships will transport those poor people to any country they may desire to go to. It is inevitable that the great bulk of them will desire to come to our shores.

We have been receiving and assimilating nearly 1,000,000 per annum of Europe's poor for the past twenty years. What can be done with the added host? It will be one of the most serious questions that our republic can be confronted with.

They will come embittered, rancorous; tens of thousands of them with the idea that in this land of liberty they can do as they please; the half servitude of the old world removed, and all their lives having respected nothing but force; what will be their effect when turned loose upon us?

The first result will be to reduce the price of labor. When that comes what will our own laboring men do? With the cost of living their present wages are in a hundred fields too low; when the cost shall be advanced and the rates of wages are reduced, what will follow? Our day of trial will come then.

Heroic Mustache.

Probably no dog has ever rendered such signal military service or been so honorably recognized as the celebrated poodle Mustache, who shared the victorious fortunes of the French army through most of the wars of the consulate and of the French empire. He won special honors at Marengo and was decorated on the battlefield of Austerlitz by Marshal Lannes as a reward for having rescued his regimental standard from an Austrian soldier when in the act of snatching it from the grasp of the standard bearer as he fell mortally wounded. The plucky poodle drove off the assailant, and then, seizing the tattered colors in his teeth, dragged them triumphantly till he reached his own company.

Will Teach Movie Actors

The San Jose Film company's department of instruction has arranged for a three-months' free course of training, with instruction in dancing, fencing, make-up, costuming, life study, expression, language of the body, hands and poise, stage deportment, delsarte and lighting values. Graduates will be employed as "extras" in the company's photoplay productions and those who show the required ability and artistic development will, at different times, be given an opportunity to step out of the "extra" ranks and fill minor parts. Modern producers find it necessary to have a large force of trained people—folk who are "camera-wise"—for many a worthy production has been marred by the employment of inexperienced people as "extras" and the school here is to be opened as a part of the company's well-laid plans for the standardization of the "silent drama" through its own productions. Artists already well-known in the motion picture world have been engaged as principals.

Those who desire to enroll for the course have been requested to report before Thursday at the general offices of the company at room 524 in the Bank of San Jose building and to bring with them a good photograph.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

The Climax

The friends of a Middle West country newspaper editor are showering their congratulations upon him. He was elected Mayor, became a father and collected two overdue subscriptions all in one week.
